

Abstract of the Disclosure

A wireline well-logging data acquisition system and method for establishing corrected depth based on pressure readings from two pressure sensors separated by a known distance.